Why Payfuture

Where global money meets last-mile rails

Money sent from abroad still has to land in a local bank account, in local currency, through a compliant route. Money leaving these markets to pay a supplier overseas faces the same problem in reverse. Payfuture's rails handle both directions in India, Pakistan, Nigeria, the Philippines and Egypt.

What you can do with Payfuture

Remittances and payroll in, supplier payments out. All of it runs on the same fiat and stablecoin rails.

Money in. Money out.

Remittance is only half the story. Businesses in our markets also pay suppliers abroad and get paid by buyers overseas. Payfuture's rails carry money in both directions.

- In: remittances from abroad, delivered in local currency.
- In: payments from overseas buyers to exporters.
- Out: importers paying suppliers overseas.
- Both ways: oil and gas traders moving money for imports and exports.
